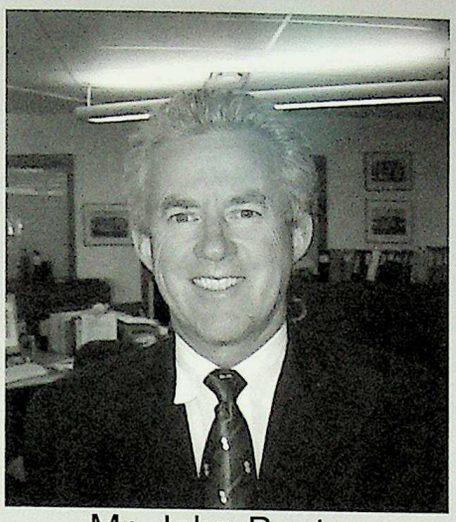
Principal's Message



Mr. John Beaton

As another year draws to a close, I find myself torn in two directions: one part looking forward in anticipation to the start of school in September and the other reflecting back on what has been an exciting year that was full of change.

W.P. Wagner is a school with a reputation for academic, athletic and artistic success, and as you scan through the yearbook, you will see evidence of the many activities that help make Wagner unique: a Touch of Class, pep rallies, United Nations Day for the Elimination of Discrimination, Mathstreet Boys, the Talent Show and the Waggie Awards. However, as much as these events are memorable the true magic of Wagner is in the communal spirit of adventure, the ability to take risks and an openness to try new things.

Another aspect of the Wagner culture is the knowledge that change is a crucial yet positive part of growth. An example of this concept is the continual cycle of one class getting ready to graduate and another nervously anticipating the beginning of high school. This year is particularly special in that it not only marks change for students but also for staff. Several teachers have taken the opportunity to pursue new assignments and both Mr. Suderman and Jones accepted promotions to principalship. As these special staff members begin new journeys, other talented staff joins Wagner and brings fresh perspectives and new ideas.

To members of the graduating class, the staff joins me in wishing you well. I encourage you to share the many things you have learned at Wagner and embrace the exciting opportunities that will come your way.

GRAD 2005

Valedictory Address

by George Coomber

Good afternoon, graduates, school staff, and family members. My name is George Coomber and I am honored to represent the class of 2005 as valedictorian. After surviving diploma exams and the frenzied rush of preparations for graduation, we have reached the end of our last year at W.P. Wagner High School. This marks the completion of twelve years of schooling. While it may seem that graduating is just a minor accomplishment, graduation is actually a milestone in life. It marks a period of our lives in which the possibilities before us are endless. From here, anything is possible: you could become a doctor, an engineer, a writer, an actor, or basketball player. The only thing that limits the possibilities for the future is our own imagination.

When you think about the last dozen years of our lives, it is astonishing to realize how much we have grown both physically and mentally. Undoubtedly, our time at Wagner has had a profound affect on this growth and on who we are as individuals.

As I reflect on the past three years, I believe that the most remarkable memories we will have of Wagner will be about our teachers. Every student in this room has had teachers who have been captivating, insightful, humorous, and knowledgeable.

In my own experience, I have had teachers who are not only scholarly, but who are also interesting, caring, and committed people whom the students enjoy spending time with. These teachers have helped us gain knowledge and experience both inside and outside of the classroom. For example, whether it was learning how to dissect sheep eyeballs, comprehend Shakespeare, or evaluate an indefinite integrals, or participating in Theatre Appreciation, Leadership, Travel Club, or the rowing team, every student was encouraged to learn and to experience pursuits that widened his or her horizons.

Wagner has educated every student on how to live life in the "real world" that awaits us after graduation. Each one of us is emerging from high school with new aspirations and views about life and the world. Few students in Edmonton are as fortunate as we have been.

Now we are reaching a crossroads. We must make decisions that will affect the rest of our lives: "Will I attend post-secondary?"; "What is the best university for me?"; Should I get a job for next year?"; "When should I go traveling?" Throughout our lives we will constantly be faced with difficult decisions such as these. However, in the future, the correct path may not be an obvious one, and it is impossible for us to ask ourselves to always make the right choice. As William Shakespeare once wrote "The web of our life is of mingled yard, good and ill together: our virtues would be proud if our faults whipped them not; and our crimes would despair if they were not cherished by our virtues."

Because life is filled with shades of gray, in the future each one of us must chose the path that we believe to be the wisest. I have no answers to life's most meaningful questions and do not pretend to hold the wisdom or the experience necessary to illustrate how a person should live his or her life. However, I would like to share some thoughts on how we should conduct ourselves as we are sent out into the world.

Firstly, let us work towards making the world a better place. Despite the common belief that an individual has little influence, we must realize that each and every one of us can make a difference in the world. Contributing to the betterment of humanity may sound contrived and cliché, but it is not such an unrealistic endeavour. Aspire to add to the beauty of life through painting, sculpture, writing poetry, or creating music; often these forms of expression can be used by a person to alter the ways others think and to bring joy to life. Promote peace, respect for the environment, and the elimination of poverty, in both your thoughts and deeds. Improving our life on this earth does not necessarily mean that each one of us has to become a medical doctor or find a cure for cancer, on the contrary, it is often the smaller things that one does that can make the biggest difference. Perhaps the simplest way one can work for the enhancement of the planet is through kindness in one's everyday actions towards others. The English philosopher, William Penn, best demonstrated why a person should be kind when he stated, "I expect to pass through life but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do for any fellow being, let me do it now ...as I shall not pass this way again."

My second hope is that we enjoy life. Our time on this earth is too brief to live without contentment. Therefore, let us always try to make our lives and the lives of those around us as delightful as possible. Though we must work hard, it is paramount that we always realize that a life without joy is not worth living. Life is too short to insist that you will work hard now and relax when you are older, because nothing in life can be guaranteed. The key to enjoying life is to be happy. In the words of Mahatma Gandhi, "Happiness is when what you think, what you say, and what you do are in harmony." This harmony of action, thought, and word, should be practiced by every one of us, because if we truly believe in our words and our actions, we shall never regret the choices we make in life.

And for my last thought, I turn to William Shakespeare who wrote, "To this above all: to thine own self be true." Always believe in yourself and your abilities, always act according to your own conscience, and always be honest and genuine with yourself. We should never pretend to be something that we are not, and we should never be ashamed of who we are. To be true to yourself, you must pursue your goals in life. No matter how impossible and unlikely theses goals may seem, if you persevere you can achieve anything. Winston Churchill once said that "Continuous effort-not strength or intelligence-in the key to unlocking our potential."

I would like to close today by saying that the many decisions that face us can cause a person to dwell only on the future and on what lies ahead in life. Let us not lose sight of what is most valuable in life: the present. Every second that one experiences in a day is invaluable and should never be taken for granted. In the words of the author, Robert M. Pirsig, "To live life for some future goal is shallow. It's the sides of the mountain that sustain life, not the top." Thank you.
